

Dr. Michael Mol

Michael Mol didn't go for career counseling, which could explain why he's a medical doctor, an executive TV producer & presenter, an international speaker, social entrepreneur, founder of Hello Doctor and head of Health Solutions for Momentum Multiply. His twitter profile reads @DrMichaelMol:

"A husband to one, father to three, friend to few, a stranger to many... but not to God."

A trauma doctor turned TV personality with a Mr. South Africa title in the mix, Michael traded the casualty room for the small screen and anchored Top Billing, South Africa's longest running prime time television magazine show, for more than a decade, scooping up several critically acclaimed awards along the way.

Michael's passion for discerning what makes people tick then led him to co-founding TomorrowToday consulting - assisting organizations navigate the 'New World of Work' followed up by The Revolution Group - centered on helping people unearth what they were born to do through discovering their unique strengths. He has spoken to audiences around the world and has been recognized as one of the South Africa's top business speakers with a Hall of Fame distinction.

In line with his ambition for a healthier world, Michael took up the position of CEO of Sportron International - a group of companies focused on promoting health and wellness through education and a new generation of nanotech nutritional supplements - but the power of media to bring about positive behaviour change would not let him go.

After launching Espresso, SABC3's live morning show, as anchor presenter, he melded his passion for medicine and media and produced two new TV series: "Hello Doctor" and "The Dr. Mol Show" with a vision to educate, entertain and inspire people to live their best life, by being the healthiest they can be. Watched by over a million people weekly, the show was part of a bigger vision to give every South African access to personal, affordable and quality healthcare through immediate access to doctors via their mobile phones.

That vision became a reality with "Hello Doctor" - a mobile digital healthcare company with a game-changing approach to healthcare, using mobile tech to give anyone access to a doctor anytime, anywhere, on any phone, in any language. Hello Doctor is advancing #HealthForAll, and bringing South Africa closer to achieving the WHO's Sustainable Development Goals - ensuring that everyone, everywhere can access essential quality health services without facing financial hardship.

Michael is an Oxford Alumni, a South African Brand ambassador and has been commissioned to write a second book, on the back of his first best-selling publication "Your Best Life."

Aside from all the hats he wears, he suffers from an insatiable thirst for adrenaline. He has sky-dived out of a hot-air balloon, run the bulls in Pamplona, scuba-dived under a frozen lake, wing walked on a bi-plane, surfed the great Zambezi white waters on a body board, flown to the edge of space in a Russian Mig and bungee jumped off the highest bridge in the world, backwards - needless to say his insurance premiums are at a premium!

Michael lives in Cape Town, South Africa with his wife Jacqui, their three children: Josh (18), Rachael (16) and Naethan (10) and is no longer on the safe side of 40.
